P&G

Dear application community,

I would like to apply for an open FULL-TIME positions in your company, present with my candidateship to become an honored participant in it.

Currently I'm in my last semester of master studies in Mechanical Engineering at Szent István University. I've obtained my bachelor of science in "Mechanical Engineering", my studies in this field allowed me to acquire a rich theoretical and practical knowledge in several fields: (mechanical, thermal, electrical ,IT, Design, automotive, constriction ), a mixed of sciences that I consider crucial to succeed any mission dedicated to a mechanical engineer.

As you may notice in my Curriculum Vitae, my university carrier has been strengthened by good professional experiences. I had the opportunity to develop my practical skills in different positions and domains, depending on my previous positions like working as an Automotive sales manager in vehicles sector; I was able to develop my capacities to involve various missions to be at the point on marketing and technical issues of cars,. Also, my position in the international management department of Szent István University and Near East University, as Agent and mentor, allowed me to handle the administrations management issues and managing the international communication with Europeans and African universities. In addition, my position in construction sector as a project supervisor where I expand my horizons and my social network in the society by managing, and organizing different plans with international companies

After careful examination of the position requirements, I realized that it perfectly matches my interests and abilities; I have a good academic background, high command of analytical and management skills, developed communication, interpersonal skills, aspiration for constant self-development.

I am very scrupulous and goals-oriented; prefer to plan the actions in advance besides conducting deep research and analysis about the problem or the situation in order to identify the causes of it. I would like to join your teams to bring all my energy and contribute to the success of your company while learning in an environment that inspires me. I am sure that my previous experiences can bring renewability and originality.

In conclusion, I would be extremely honored if you find my application interesting and strong enough to make a positive decision regarding the acceptance of my candidateship; Thank you in advance for considering my application.
